This book describes the nature and purpose of commercial activities in a modern mixed economy, and gives a detailed analysis of the functions and relationships that exist between and within both public and private sectors.
Commercial methods both wholesale and retail are described as well as the role of banks and finance houses. The service industries such as transport, insurance and shipping for trade overseas are described together with their documentation. This is a readable and comprehensive textbook providing a useful introduction to the subject for students of economics and business studies.
