A DREAM IN HAWAII

BHABANI BHATTACHARYA

This fascinating novel presents an absorbing and revealing encounter of the clash of values between the East and the West. Set against the serene back-drop of Hawaii, the story focuses on the growing sense of disenchantment and desperate seekings of the West for inner peace which have led to the spread of Eastern culture and all its concomitant values.

"Written in fire. The author must be admitted into the company of those who make English literature."

Winifred Haythorne,
The Socialist Leader, UK

"Wonderful craftsman"
Chicago Tribune

"A seasoned master... His works represent the author at his best and Indian prose writing in English at its most competent."

Hindu

...writes of Indians with an authority and understanding that no Western writer could hope to match. And he writes with complete mastery of the fictional technique of the West."

The New York Times
