"An honest book, a book necessary to light up the dark places of our society."

— DR. RICHARD S. HOFFMANN

"In 1955 I wrote a book called We Walk Alone, a study of a lesbian by a lesbian. After its publication, I received hundreds of letters. Doctors wrote, mothers and fathers wrote, girls who didn't know whether they were lesbians or not wrote, and girls who did, wrote.

Some of the letters were sad, others were frightened, some grateful and others angry, but they all had one thing in common--they wanted to know more about the female homosexual.

This book is an answer to those letters as well as a supplement to We Walk Alone. In it I have written of the whys and wherefores of lesbian life in New York City—as I have known it."
