The unorganized sector plays a pivotal role in our economy. There is little scope for the regeneration of our economy unless we understand the uniqueness of this sector and make policies accordingly.

As part of our efforts to understand and present our country in its true economic dimensions, the Swadeshi Academic Council, Tamilnadu in association with the P.S.G. Institute of Management, Coimbatore conducted a study in Karur, Tamilnadu.

In recent years, Karur in Tamilnadu has emerged to be an important business center in India. The financial enterprises of Karur have contributed significantly to its growth. Particularly striking is the growth, success and contribution of the unorganised finance sector to the economy of Karur.

This book narrates the role of unincorporated finance sector in Karur. It analyses the background, evolution, structure and functioning of this sector and the role of a network of relationships revolving around families and communities to promote and run these initiatives successfully without any help from the state.

P.Kanagasabapathi, a Doctorate in Financial Markets, is an Associate Professor with the P.S.G. Institute of Management, Coimbatore.
