Top public relations executive Saul Spencer specialised in manipulating people – and this skill had made him a wealthy man. Wealth being the one thing in life he cherished; so, when he noticed that his blonde and desirable assistant Leah Morrison and his top client, fast rising tennis star Hogan Whitney, were developing a more than professional interest in each other, he became determined to protect his own interest. Sending Leah to work in Hong Kong at just the right moment was the perfect solution... until Hogan turned up there too!
