

A MENTOR BOOK

A BRITANNICA PERSPECTIVE

MY926
$1.25

The Learning Society

ROBERT M. HUTCHINS

A great educator's challenging vision of higher learning in today's—and tomorrow's—world

The Learning Society

Robert M. Hutchins

A MENTOR BOOK

PUBLISHED BY THE NEW AMERICAN LIBRARY,
NEW YORK AND TORONTO

THE BRITANNICA PERSPECTIVES, issued in commemoration of Encyclopaedia Britannica's 200th anniversary, took five years of planning and research and $1,000,000 to produce. Each book is written by a leading authority in a major field of modern man's endeavor and is a summary of that field's current status and future aims. THE BRITANNICA PERSPECTIVES are both essential additions to the Encyclopaedia itself and independent, comprehensive works intended for the scholar and general reader alike.

TOWARD A BETTER TOMORROW

Today education stands at a crossroads. On the one hand, giant universities, financed by public funds and employing the most advanced technology, dominate the scene. On the other, growing numbers of students and teachers vigorously, often violently, protest the growing dehumanization of the system. In this brilliant, penetrating discussion, Robert M. Hutchins, one of the great educators of our day, sharply questions current dogmas of the Educational Establishment, and presents his own bold and far-reaching alternatives. Here is a profound plea for universities that teach rather than train; that act as agents for change rather than as servants of the status quo; that can offer all humanity the liberation of spirit that is the highest ideal of the learning process.