FOUNT PAPERBACKS

The autobiography of Bede Griffiths, a man who, having drifted away from orthodox religion, gradually rediscovered the meaning of the Bible and of Christianity, and finally turned to the Roman Catholic Church and the monastic life. His descriptions of the nature of this religious experience and of the fulfilment he found at Prinknash Abbey are both vivid and moving.

Bede Griffiths now lives in an ashram by the sacred river Cavery in India where, as a Benedictine monk, he has created a prayer-centre where people of different religious traditions can meet together to seek the truth.

'A book of Christian and Catholic autobiography that stands altogether apart from most books for the revelation it contains... told in language of classical and mystical beauty.'

CATHOLIC HERALD

'A book of extraordinary and positive truthfulness... his experience is both genuine and very important.'
