Since his astonishing debut at the age of seven, Yehudi Menuhin has been recognised throughout the world as a uniquely gifted musician. In his fascinating and moving autobiography Menuhin writes with compelling charm of his earliest memories, of his apprenticeship, of his extraordinary career and of his many concerns that reach beyond the world of music.

"A fine book."
Anthony Burgess,

THE TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

"Reveals Yehudi Menuhin not only as the great violinist who plays Bach in so godly a manner, but as a man who loves life."

JERUSALEM POST MAGAZINE

"Irradiated by the author's personal voice and distinctive idiom, bubbling with his capacity for joy, his unflagging curiosity about everything under the sun, crammed with descriptive sketches brilliantly lighting up places and people, suffused by an ironic humour . . . I cannot too strongly proclaim the stimulating pleasure to be found in UNFINISHED JOURNEY."
