DEAD WITNESS

He was carving the Crucifixion in the sand. He was old, broken, whiskey-ridden. They didn't have to kill him. But when they did, they forgot one thing. He was an artist—and the angels in his picture had the faces of devils.

GREEN COP

His beat was the city zoo. As a cop he was still wet behind the ears. Then one day he fell into a nest of snakes, human snakes. And he had to learn fast—to live.

These are two of the men who stopped the ravaging criminal in his tracks. The brutal fight-to-the-death of those who break the law and those who keep it is told with shattering impact in this powerful new book by MacKINLAY KANTOR, author of ANDERSONVILLE.
